Whilst every attempt has been made to ensure the accuracy of the information supplied, both in the text description and on the map, use of the relevant Ordnance Survey maps is strongly recommended. The level of detail on OS maps is far higher than we could ever hope to depict here.

The relevant maps for the most detail concerning rights of way are the pathfinder series (green covers) nos. 1025, 1048, and 1072. However, the Landranger series (red covers) nos. 153 and 166 would be an adequate alternative.

Look out for the special Bunyan Trail waymark discs, although (regrettably) permission to waymark the route from Barton Rectory through to Barton Hill Farm was refused.

When in the countryside please follow the Countryside Code

Leave only your footprints – Take only photographs.
